Annotated Bibliography

How to Add an Annotated Bibliography to your NoodleTools Citation

So what is a annotated bibliography?

"Each citation is followed by a brief (usually about 150 words) descriptive and evaluative paragraph, the annotation

The purpose of the annotation is to inform the reader of the relevance, accuracy, and quality of the sources cited"

(Definition from Cornell University Library)

From Purdue OWL:

Depending on your project or the assignment, your annotations may do one or more of the following:

- Summarize: Some annotations merely summarize the source. What are the main arguments? What is the point of this book or article? What topics are covered? If someone asked what this article/book is about, what would you say? The length of your annotations will determine how detailed your summary is.
- Assess: After summarizing a source, it may be helpful to evaluate it. Is it a useful source? How does it compare with other sources in your bibliography? Is the information reliable? Is this source biased or objective? What is the goal of this source?
- Reflect: Once you've summarized and assessed a source, you need to ask how it fits into your research.
 Was this source helpful to you? How does it help you shape your argument? How can you use this source in your research project? Has it changed how you think about your topic?

Create a new project in NoodleTools, or open an existing one.

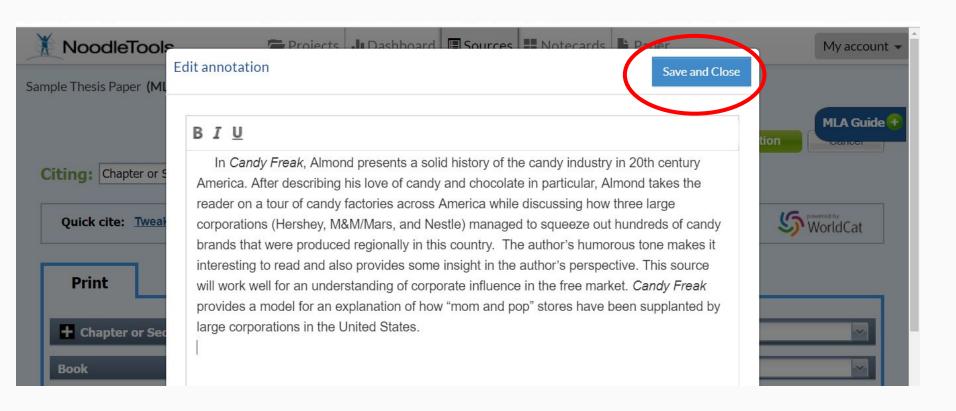

When creating a new citation: Follow the steps to create a citation - "Sources" tab, "+Create new citation"

Enter the citation information into NoodleTools (for example, ISBN #, author, title, etc.)

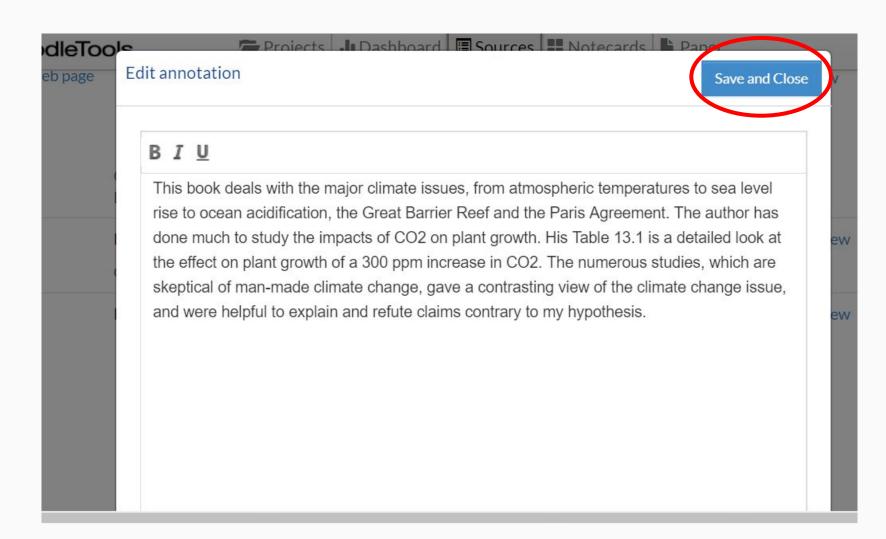

Scroll to the bottom of your citation. Instead of the "Save" button, click the "Save & add annotation" button.

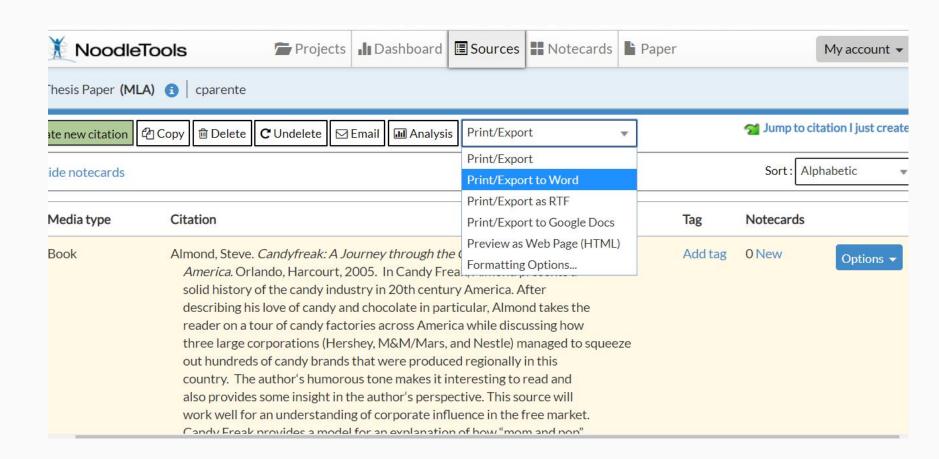

Write your annotation in the pop-up box and click "Save and Close."

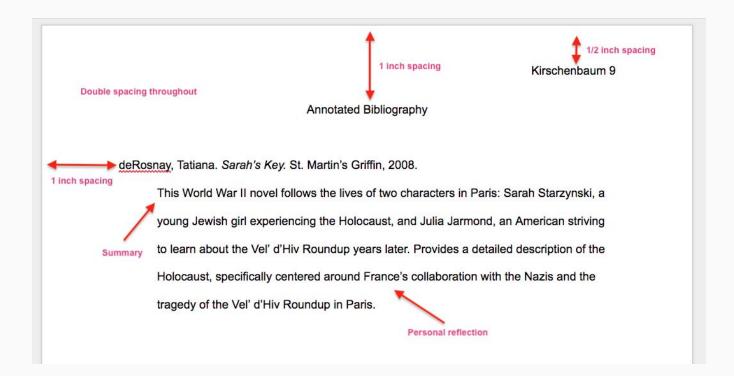

If you've already created the citation, click on the "Options" button and choose "Edit annotation" from the drop-down menu.

This is what your annotated bibliography should look like when it is printed.
