Why do we need to use reliable sources?

WHERE CAN YOU GO FOR INFORMATION
THAT YOU KNOW ISN'T FAKE?

There are many sources to use when you are researching.

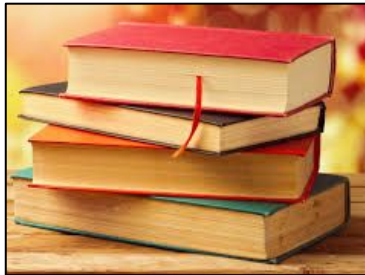

Newspapers & Magazines

Interviews

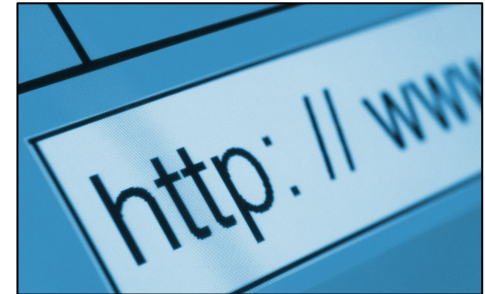

Library Databases

Books

Surveys

Websites

Library Subscription Databases

Peer Reviewed, Academic & Scholarly Sources, for free.

What are Library Databases?

Databases are digital libraries that allow you to access searchable lists of the following:

- Historical and current newspapers
- Magazines
- Books
- Encyclopedias
- Scholarly and peer-reviewed journals
- Images
- Audio and video clips

Databases are online subscriptions services and usually password protected. Each database contains thousands of articles and resources like those above.

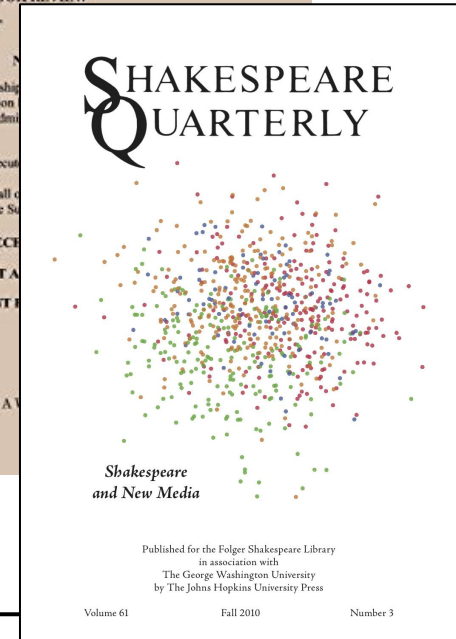

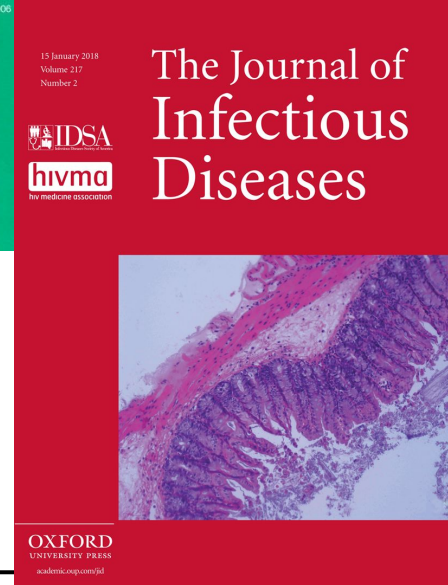

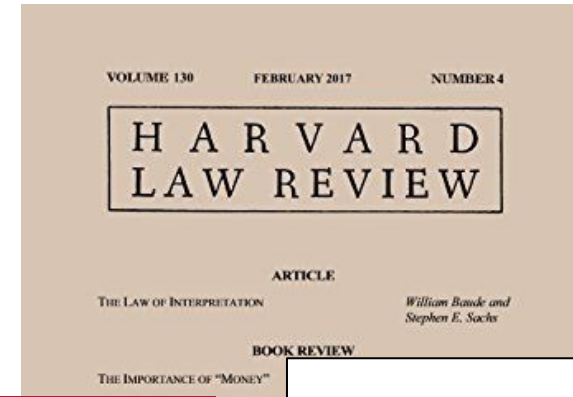

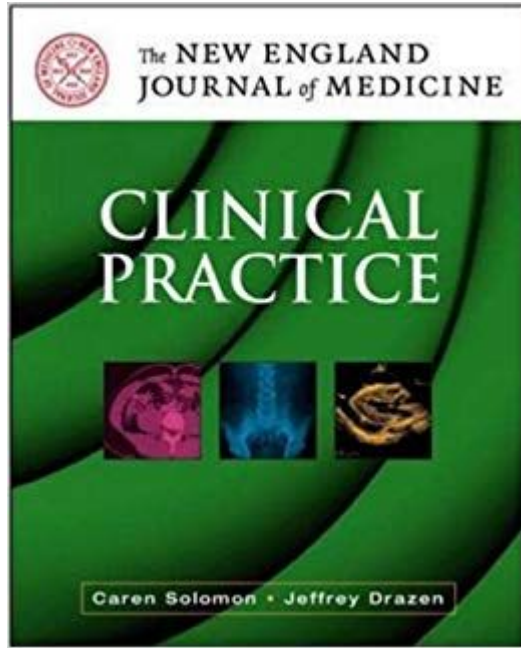

– Scholarly & Academic Sources & Peer Reviewed Journals

- Find scholarly or peer-reviewed journals in library databases
 - Journals are published periodically (monthly, quarterly, yearly)
 - Articles are written by an expert (scholar, professor, researcher, etc.) in field covered
 - Textbooks, encyclopedias, and books written for commercial use are generally not considered academic or scholarly.

Peer Reviewed Journals

Peer review process: A qualified author submits an original paper to a journal. The paper is reviewed for accuracy by the editor and experts in the same field of study. The article is either published or rejected.
